

Manny W. Schecter

Manny W. Schecter is Chief Patent Counsel, Associate General Counsel, and Managing IP Attorney at IBM – the top annual US patentee for the last 20 consecutive years. In his current position, Mr. Schecter leads IBM’s worldwide intellectual property law organization on patent matters and advises on intellectual property strategy and policy. Mr. Schecter has been employed in the IP organization of IBM for over 20 years, including positions in Vermont, Virginia, Arizona, and New York. His current position is at IBM corporate headquarters in Armonk, NY.

Mr. Schecter is an active member of several IP related organizations. He currently serves on the board of directors of the Intellectual Property Owners Association (IPO), the IPO Education Foundation, and Allied Security Trust. He is also the chair of the Professional Programs Committee and a past chair of the Electronic and Computer Law Committee of the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA). Mr. Schecter organized the patent quality initiative which became the Peer-to-Patent project that was successfully piloted in the US and several other countries, elements of which are now incorporated into the USPTO patent examination process in accordance with the recently enacted America Invents Act. He has spoken at numerous IP related events, lectured at various universities, and authored amicus briefs and articles on patent quality. He blogs at ibmip.com and can be found on Twitter at @MannySchecter.

Mr. Schecter is a graduate of Cornell University and the George Washington University Law School.