

DAVID BENDER

David Bender is a sole practitioner, situated in Dobbs Ferry, New York, with extensive Privacy, Information Technology, and Intellectual Property litigation, counseling, and transactional experience. He is a member of the bars of the State of New York, and of the US Patent and Trademark Office, and is also an Adjunct Professor at the University of Houston Law Center, where he teaches Privacy Law. Before retiring from White & Case, Mr. Bender headed the firm's global privacy practice, and was also a founder of its IP practice. Mr. Bender served in-house at AT&T, and for several years was responsible for all IP litigation brought by or against any Bell System company. Prior to that, he spent several years engaged in antitrust litigation. Before turning to the law, he served as an engineer with the Ford Motor Company's aerospace division and as a mathematician with Hughes Aircraft. He is a member of the International Association of Privacy Professionals, and of the International Technology Law Association (President, 1999-2000).

Mr. Bender is the author of Bender on Privacy and Data Protection (LexisNexis 2012), and Computer Law (LexisNexis), published in 1978 and presently in Release #61, and of over 100 articles in law reviews and conference proceedings. He is a frequent speaker, with over 250 presentations across the United States and in some 19 other nations at conferences sponsored by numerous organizations. He was named by Super Lawyers as a New York City Super Lawyer for Information Technology Law each year from 2006 – 2010, and also as one of the 25 Best Lawyers in Westchester County in 2009, 2010, and 2011.

Mr. Bender holds a Sc.B. in Applied Mathematics from Brown University and an LL.B. from the University of Pennsylvania. He also has an LL.M. in Patent Law, and an S.J.D., from George Washington University, where he was a Research Fellow to Professor Irving Kayton.