Prior to joining Sandoz, Abby spent over a decade at Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer, where she represented pharmaceutical and life sciences clients in high profile patent infringement disputes, both in federal court and in front of the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. Abby received her J.D. from Fordham School of Law and her bachelor's degree in Neuroscience from Wesleyan University. She has served as a member of the NYIPLA's board since 2019, and is currently board liaison to the Women in IP Law Committee.

Alexandra Valenti, a partner in Goodwin's Intellectual Property Litigation practice, is a member of the firm's Life Sciences Disputes group and focuses her practice on patent matters in the pharmaceuticals and biotech industries. Recognized in Benchmark Litigation's "40 & Under Hot List" and by IAM Patent 1000 and Managing IP, Ms. Valenti has represented clients in numerous patent infringement lawsuits in federal courts nationwide, including significant victories after trial and on appeal. Ms. Valenti also represents clients in intellectual property matters outside of district court litigation, and has extensive experience in arbitrations arising from intellectual property licensing and related commercial agreements. She regularly publishes and speaks on intellectual property matters pertaining to the development and commercialization of biosimilar products. She is an editor of the firm's blog, Big Molecule Watch, and is a Senior Editor to Goodwin's "Guide to Biosimilars Litigation and Regulation," which is published yearly by Thomson Reuters.

Lauren L. Fornarotto

Principal | lfornarotto@mckoolsmith.com

New York T: 212.402.9426

Lauren focuses on intellectual property and complex commercial litigation, including actions in district courts nationwide, the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and the International Trade Commission. She handles patent litigation relating to chemicals, pharmaceuticals, biotechnology, medical devices, software, and mobile devices; pharmaceutical and medical device antitrust litigation; and breach of settlement and license agreement actions.

Lauren also represents clients in IPR proceedings before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. Most recently, she served as lead counsel for Sanofi and Regeneron in an IPR proceeding and Federal Circuit appeal, ultimately invalidating all claims of an Immunex/Amgen-owned patent that was the subject of Central District of California litigation against novel biologic Dupixent®.

Before law school, Lauren worked as a chemical process engineer at ABB Lummus Global (now known as Lummus Technology), where she designed chemical conversion processes for oil refineries and ethylene plants. Today she is defending ABB in a Southern District of Texas patent case relating to process control systems.

Lauren has been named a "Rising Star" by Super Lawyers and is a leading lawyer in Patent Litigation per The Legal 500. Her speaking engagements include appearances at the International Women's Leadership Forum (Managing IP) and the Women, Influence & Power in the Law conference (The American Lawyer).

Prior to joining McKool Smith, Lauren was an associate at Cravath, Swaine & Moore LLP. As a law student, she was an Alexander Fellow law clerk for the Honorable Colleen McMahon of the Southern District of New York, researching and drafting opinions on various matters, including patent and copyright infringement.
