

Marissa Lewis is a partner in Mitchell Silberberg & Knupp's Entertainment & Intellectual Property Litigation Practice Group.

Marissa's practice includes intellectual property counseling, prosecution, enforcement, and litigation, with a focus on trademark and copyright. Marissa represents both established and up-and-coming companies and individuals across various industries, including the media, entertainment, music, sports, gaming, and technology industries. She particularly enjoys—and has a lot of experience—working closely with clients to clear and select new brand names, and representing clients in contentious matters in U.S. federal court and before the U.S. Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.